HANDY BAG HOLDER.

Farmer Tel's How He Made One Which Did Better Service Than Many Others,

A subscriber in Stephenson county, tom of two-inch strip, 6x8 inches square, with solid wood back. For my hopper 1 used sheet iron of an old binder, cutting it to slaut out at the top on three sides so that it will be easy to shovel into. I then fastened one hook on each corner at the bottom to hang the bag on. A two-inch strip three feet long was then bolted on to the flat side of the hopper, and in this a number of holes were bored. finished my bagholder, and all I have to do is to hang it on a spike, using the different holes in the strip for this purpose, according to the size of the bag. The illustration shows the plan This is another of those little devices that is useful to the farmer. There are comparatively few things 5-4 that are more useful than a good bug holder. Ordinarily two men are required to do the vork that one man can do if he has a bag holder that is practical. It appears as though our Stephenson county (III.) subscriber his a plan that will answer every pur-Some will object to it on account of the hooks, and the liability of tearing the bag, but we venture even though there is some injury, that the damage will not be so great but what the top of the bag will last as long as will the bottom where it comes in contact with the floor.
